

About the Journal

The Serang Campus Mechanical Engineering Community Service Journal is a journal for the development and application of science and technology which contains publications on the results of community service activities, models or concepts and/or implementation in the context of increasing community participation in development, community empowerment or implementing community service. The TENSILE Journal is published by the Mechanical Engineering Study Program, Faculty of Engineering, Pamulang Serang University, first published Vol. 1 No. 1 on November 30 2022. Articles published in TENSILE  PKM Mechanical Engineering Journal are in the form of original manuscripts that have never been published before, published 3 times a year in March, July and November

Current Issue

Vol. 4 No. 3 (2026): November 2026

The Mechanical Engineering Community Service Journal is a journal for the development and application of science and technology which contains publications on the results of community service activities, models or concepts and/or their implementation in the context of increasing community participation in development, community empowerment or implementing community service. The TENSILE Journal is published by the Mechanical Engineering Study Program, Faculty of Engineering, Pamulang University, Serang Campus, published in Vol.4 No. 2 on November 30, 2026

Published: 2026-11-01